Police certificates

You must provide police certificate(s) from each country where you have lived for a total of 12 months or more in the last 10 years as evidence that you satisfy the character requirements. These 12 months are calculated cumulatively and need not have been consecutive.

The name on the police certificate(s) must match the name in your passport and must include any other names or aliases you are or have been known by. If the name on the police clearance certificate(s) received by us is different from your passport or does not list all other names you have been known by, you will be requested to obtain another police certificate(s).

If we are satisfied that you are unable to obtain a police certificate(s) and have made a genuine attempt to do so, then a waiver of this requirement may be granted.

If you do not provide the police certificate(s) and I am satisfied that it is reasonable for you to provide them, your application may be refused.

Some countries may need you to obtain a letter from us confirming the request for a police certificate. More information including country-specific instructions on how to obtain a police certificate is available on our website immi.homeaffairs.gov.au/help-support/meeting-our-requirements/character

Arranging your health examinations outside Australia

Required health examinations are conducted by panel physicians (qualified doctors and radiologists nominated by the Department). More information is available at immi.homeaffairs.gov.au/help-support/meeting-our-requirements/health/arrange-your-health-examinations.

Panel physicians in your country may have access to process your health examinations using a secure online system called eMedical. Arranging your health examinations in Australia

Required health examinations in Australia are conducted by an approved migration medical services provider. This provider is currently Bupa Medical Visa Services. You can arrange an appointment with their online booking tool at www.bupamvs.com.au.

What you need to do before making an appointment

Before booking your appointment, you will need to complete the following steps:

1. Log in to your ImmiAccount available at www.homeaffairs.gov.au/immiaccount
2. Click on the View health assessment link on the left side panel from within your visa application.
3. Click on the Organise your Health Examinations link on the right side panel under Examinations required.

Dear LOVNISH

HEALTH EXAMINATIONS LIST

You are required to undergo the following health examination(s) to ensure that you meet the health requirement for a Skilled Work Regional (Provisional) (subclass 491) visa.

- Medical Examination
- Chest X-ray Examination
- Serum Creatinine and Estimated Glomerular Filtration Rate (eGFR)

You need to bring this letter when you attend the panel clinic to complete your health examinations.

The Request Detail section of this letter explains how to find panel clinic, how to book an appointment and what you need to take your appointment.

You might need to complete additional health examinations based on the findings of your initial examinations.

If you have completed a health examination in the last 12 months, you might not need to complete another examination. If a health examination is listed in this letter as 'Completed' this means your previous examination might be able to be re-used for this visa application. However, you might be asked to undertake this examination again if your medical circumstances have changed or 12 months or more have passed from the time you completed your previous examination.

More information about meeting our health requirement is on our website immi.homeaffairs.gov.au/help-support/meeting-our-requirements/health

Yours sincerely
